The Sydney Morning Berald.

TUESDAY, MARCH 21, 1843,

extort grants for their subjects which the ctary of State, dated November 5, 1841, overnor Honson said, "I have the hoour to report that in my recent visit to f Akaroa, where I found the French very ied them from Europe, Mons. BELLIGNY, with the French corvette L'Aube, Captain LAVAUD, lying at anchor n the harbour. In the course of my comas with that officer, he constantly invariably disclaimed any national insupported the claims of the company as private individuals, asserting theirs to be the only bona fide purchase of that district which had been made from the natives." French whaler " the whole of Banks Peninsula, to a considerable distance along the coast, both north and south, and to an indefinite limit into the interior." The thirty, but five hundred were about embarking when New Zealand was proclaimed a British Colony, which caused them to remain in France. The GOVERNOR proposed that the Company should be dealt with upon the same conditions as the New Zealand Company, and island should be measured to them, proportioned to their actual extent of capital.

Governor Hosson's letter was referred to the Colonial Land and Emigration Commissioners, who approved of the principle, and after a number of letters had passed between the different departments of Goversment, on the 28th July, 1812, Lord ABERDEEN wrote to Lord Cowley, the British Ambassador at Paris, with a copy Excellency will communicate this correspondence to the French Minister for Foreign Affairs, and you will state to him that Her Majesty's Government proposes to deal with the company connected with the me principle as if they had been a British company, and to invite them, as a preliminary step, to prove the extent of their claims, with an intimation that their claims when proved to be just, will be allowed in the Northern Island, and that no difficulties will be thrown in the way of their document whence these particulars were obtained was ordered to be printed early in August, there had not been time to receive any reply, but the exact position of the French settlers in regard to England is now put beyond any doubt. As a proof that the French contemplate with New Zealand, we publish the following letter :—

How the benefit of the process of the color of the co lie went though the evidence at considerable length, and then called the following with the content of the state of the advantage of the state of the state correct in his evidence. He said he had prayed to Goo to enable him to speak the truth.

Examination resumed: About 102 yards from the spot where the man was lying I met a soldier and a woman; the soldier had on a red coat and white trousers; caunot say if he had on a cap or a hat, but thinks it was a cap; the soldier might be as inil as me, but should not know him again; the woman was linked in his left arm; they were going in the direction of West Maitland; the woman had on a straw bonnet; her gown was not white, but I thought it had something red in it; I said, "Beware of the big dog, and the man that I lying by the side of the road;" the woman said, "Never mind the dog;" the soldier said something that I could not distinguish; they both were what I call drunk; don't know as to the colour of the ribbon on the bonnet; that is all that passed; it was about half past eight. About nine, we heard a scream, and I, with others, ran to the fence, when the cry ccased, but I heard people talking on the other side the creek; we supposed the cries came from Pawley's side of the creek. I have seen the place where the body was found—the hank is very steep; the distance from the regular path to the top of the hank there is about forty yards; idi not hear the stockade bell ring that might.

Cross-examined by Mr. Pouszrov: I remained at the fence about twenty minutes; it was a starlight night; did not see the body taken up; no person could have passed along without our seeing him.

William Rothersy was the next witness called.

By the Jupos: Are you the person whese called.

By the Jupon: Are you the person whose name is upon the calendar?

Witness: It is.

Jupon: You are not hound to answer any questions to criminate yourself; but whatever answers you give must be the truth.

Rotheray's examination: I am a cabinet-maker by trade; on the 22nd of November roice that said. "Be quiet Mary Aun." I met no one on my ws from the "Black Horse" to my house; the constables and I blockaded hoth roads.

By the Judge: The bank is so steep that if a man or woman got to the edge of it, and slipped, nothing could save them.

Margaret M'Cue: Was living at Mrs. Pawley's on the night of the 22nd November. She confirmed the evidence of the two last witnesses; on her cross-examination, she swore to hearing a man say "Come, Mary Ann, if you are not willing to go with me, go with this strange man."

Emma Adams: My husband keeps the "Black Horse," in East Maitland; Thompson was at our house between seven and eight on the night of the 22nd November; he came with a woman and another soldier; Thompson had on his soldier's clothes; the other had not; I did not know the woman; he called her Mary Ann; cannot say that it was the body of the same woman that was found the next day; the clothes resembled her's; they sat drinking till past eight; they had two half-pints of rum in four hours; Thompson and the woman went away together; the other soldier and a woman named Smith remained; Thompson ame back again; before he came back. Pawley had come and said that a woman had been thrown into the creek; when he came back he asked me for his comrade, and said, "for God's sake, Mrs. Adams, take these applinters out of my hands; I did not do so, but saw his hands were dirty; he then went away with the other.

On being cross-examined by Mr. Puarroy, this witness said, she did not know when the stockade bell rung; but their practice was to close when it did ring; and also that she did not know when I hompson and the woman left; she did not know but she was his wife; the handkerchief now produced is like the one which was on the woman is shoulders.

By a Juryman: Rotheray called at our house about sun-down, and asked for a clock; be had a dog; it was a black and white dog; he had on dark clothes.

Henry Adams, husband of the last witness, only confirmed her evidence.

The Joug recalled Mrs. Adams: I saw un

Mr. Moore Dillon, Criminal Crown Prosecutor, sworn: The prisoner came out in the same ship as witness; it was a convict-ship; there was a mutiny, and the prisoner behaved in a very proper and praiseworthy manner. This closed the defence.

The Juone re-called Mr. Surgeon Sloane, and the witness Rotheray, and put several important questions to them. His Honor then summed up at great length. He went very ourefully through the evidence, pointing out the discrepancies which appeared, and then left it for the Jury to say whether the prisoner was guilty or not.

The Jury retired for twenty minutes, and on their return gave in a verdict of not guilty. The Juva cordered the prisoner to be discharged.

CITY COUNCIL.—The City Council met yesterday at the usual hour. The Right Worshipful the Mayor in the chair. No business of any importance was transacted. From the very irregular manner in which the discussions were carried on, it is (so says our reporter) impossible to report them. The only important subject brought forward was the Lighting Report should be taken into consideration on Monday neat, an amendment was carried to the effect, that the Lighting Committee should further report as to the expense of lighting with oil. A very great deal of conversation took place as to the assessment of the city, but nothing decisive or satisfactory was stated. The Council are to meet again on Wednesday next.

Roseas Carnonic Church.—On Sunday fast the most Rev. Archbishop Polding took formal possession of his Metropolitan Church. Mossy Mayrssa.—Mr. Baker has just published a pamplet, being the first part of a review of the "Financial state of New South Wales, considered with a view to trace the causes thereof, and point out a remedy." The part before us does not sufficiently enter into the subject to enable us to guess the drift of of the writer.

Assautzine a Tauvrez.—On Saturday last, Mr. Clarke Irving, as one of the trustees of R. C. Gordon's insolvent estate, went to the premises lately disposed of to Mr. Clarke, the Ironmonger, George-street, in order to shut up the premises, as being still part of the insolvent estate of R. C. Gordon, when, after he had been a few minutes on the premises, hearing Mr. Edward Ogg, of Singleton, advising Mr. Clarke to resist his taking possession, Mr. Irving cautioned Ogg, on which the latter without giving any warning, struck Mr. Irving a severe blow at the back of the tight ear. A warrant was obtained, and the case came on for hearing yesterday, when the defendant was found guilty of the assault as charged, and ordered to pay a fine of 49s, with 3s. dd. costs, and also to enter into sureties to keep the peace towards Mr. Irving for twelve months, himself in £40, and two sureties in £20 each.

Assault on the Island Seas.—Thomas Dean, a man of colour, steward of the barque Exporter, appeared on warrant yesterday at the Water Police Office, charged by Captain Annyl, with having used very threatening language, and also with having drawn a knife on him, during the passage hence to Manila. After this occurrence he had been sent from the cabin to the forecastle, and knocked off duty; and upon the arrival of the vessel in Manila, Captain Anwyl applied by Captain Annyl, with having used very threatening language, and also with having drawn a knife on him, during the passage hence to Manila. After this occurrence he had been sent from the cabin to the forecastle, and knocked off duty; and upon the summary of the sense in the prisoner, and

The problem of the process of the pr opinion of this meeting, that Captain Scott, J. P., is a fit and proper person to represent the counties of Brisbane, Bligh, and Hunter, in the Legislative Council.

Captain Scorr then rose, and spoke to the following effect:—Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen: I am happy in having this opportunity afforded me to make known my principles. I will commence by stating my religious views. They are, that every man should be allowed to worship 50d after his own creed. I claim for myself liberty of conscience in religious matters, and am willing to silow the same privilege to others. With regard to education, a subject in my opinion of the deepest importance. I would wish to see educationary establishments extended over the whole colony, for, in my opinion, there is no greater check to crime than the education of all classes of society. I am an advocate for extensive immigration from the United Kingdom, believing that the prosperity of the colony mainly depends upon a constant accession to our virtuous and worthy population. As to the Coolie question, I am of opinion that much more has been said about it than the subject deserves. I naver met with a man who did not believe, with me, that immigration from the mother country were the most desirable; still, however, I am of opinion, that parties should be allowed to import them at their own expense. I am decidedly for free trade in all things, and would not advocate any further tax upon corn; a higher protecting duty would possibly be advantageous to a few districts, such as the Paterson or the William Rivers—it would, however, be unjust to tax a large population for the benefit of comparatively a few individuals. I am opposed to a revival of transportation, although I am willing to admit that this country has had considerable advantage from the introduction of convicts. In consequence, however, of the late great accession to our free population, I have no hesitation in saying, that it is no longer adapted for a penal colony. Such are my principles. If any gentleman had a questi

In consequence, however, of the late great accession to our free population, I have no hesitation in saying, that it is no longer adapted for a penal colony. Such are my principles. If any grutteman present would wish to put any grutteman present would wish to put any grutteman had a question or an amendment to propose.

Mr. Dens Robertson, of Strowan, said, Mr. Chairman and Gentlemen: The husiness which has called us together this day is, in my opinion, pregnant with matters of the greatest importance. It is, as you have been already informed, to decide to which of the candidates for the representation of this country you will give your support. It will be well, gentlemen, for you, before pledging yourselves to any, to consider well what you do; for upon your decision will depend, in some measure, the destinies of this country. Gentlemen, you are called upon, for the first time, to exercise a right which has long been unjustly withheld from you,—that of choosing a representative to support your interests in the Legi-dative Council of this country; whilst to doing let me entreat of you to bear in mind, that of the thirty-six members which will form the new Council, the flowromment will nominate twelve. This renders it necessary for you to be careful for whom you vote; for should seven of the elective members be influenced by the Govern-

TO THE ELECTORS OF THE COUNTY OF BATHURST.

OF BATHURST.

GENTLE MEN.—No Candidate having bitherto appeared for the representation of your County, in the Legislative Council, I beg to solicit the honour of your suffrages at the approaching election.

It may perhaps be objected to me, that I am neither resident in, nor have any immediate connexion with, your County, and if any eligible Bathurst candidate had come forward, I should not have offered my pretensions. But I may be permitted to observe, that your great interests are identical with those of the colony at large; that sixteen years of my life have passed since my arrival on them shores, during which time I have not been an inastenive observer of colonial affairs; that my perfect leiaure will enable me to give that close attention to your interests which they require, and that my presence on the spot will enable me to attend every discussion that takes place in our Council.

A sincere friend to civil and religious liberty; I will never consent to any infringement in principle of the laws by which they are protected; my best efforts shall be used to premote education, to introduce strict economy in our public expenditure, to encourage and increase by all means those productions of which our country is capable, and to premote such mearures as may lead to the necessary supply of labour, by the introduction of a healthy system of immagnation.

ROMAN CATHOLICS IN AMERICA. (New York Commercial Advertiser, October 22.)
The circumstances of the Catholic Church in this happy country, in which the rights of conscience and the immunities of religious freedom are secured to all men, have been extensively modified and influenced by the persecutions which she had to undergo in other lands. The usages which prevailed in the lands of bondage, were the first to which we became accustomed where bondage is unknown. Neither was it practicable nor expedient to enforce prematurely the laws of the Church in these new circumstances of this country. Hence the Bishops of this diocese have tolerated customs which the Church did not approve, but merely hore with until a better order could be introduced. That time seems at length to have arrived. The statutes, which have been enacted and promulgated, have for their object this return to the ordinary and regular discipline of the Church. Some have reference to the administration of the sacraments. It has been customary to administer the sacrament of baptism in private houses. Henceforth it will not be lawful for the clergyman so to administer it, wherever there is a Church within the distance of three miles, except when the infant may be in danger of death; and then, though it will be proper to send for the clergyman, yet, in ease he cannot be found, the faithful should understand the manner of baptizing, and should administer the sacrament, rather than leave the child to die without receiving baptism. (New York Commercial Advertiser, October 22.)

by the Church.

Another subject to which our attention has been directed, is the existence and evils of certain societics, constituted on principles not recognized or approved by the Church. They are generally designated as "secret societies; and have for the most part some professed object of benevolence, which is used as an inducement to engage new members, and to recommend such associations to public favour.

recommend such associations to public favour.

We have directed, in obedience to the laws of our holy religion and the duties of our office, that no elergyman in this diocese shall admit to any sacrament of the Church such persons as, forgetting their fidelity to her, involve themselves in the dangerous and sinful associations aiready alluded to; or in any other secret society or combination, held together by any solemn religious obligation, whether it be in the form of an oath or otherwise, of similar import. Neither shall it be lawful for any clergyman in this diocese to officiate at the funeral, or over the remains of any one dying without having renounced all connexion with such society, if it had been his reisfortume to have been so involved. This statute shall be rigidly adhered to; and any clergyman who shall have overlooked, disregarded, or neglected to enforce it, shall not be considered worthy to exercise the holy ministry.

One of the most respecting constitutes con-and be considered worthy to exercise the holy ministry.

One of the most perplexing questions connected with the well being of religion, is the tenure and administration of ecclesiastical property. A system, growing perhaps out of the circumstances of the times, has prevailed in this country, which is without a parallel in any other nation, or in the whole history of the Catholic Church. That system is of leaving ecclesiastical property under the management of laymen, who are commonly designated "trustees," We do not disguise that our conviction of the system is, that it is altogether injurious to religion, and not less injurious to the piety and religious character of those who, from time to time, are called upon to execute its offices. We have known many trustees, and we have never known one to retire from the office a better Catholic, or a more pious man than he was when he entered on it. But, on the contrary, we have known many, who on retiring from that office, were found to have lost, not only much of their religious feeling, but also much of their faith: from whom their families have derived, perhaps, the first impulse in that direction, which so many have taken, of alienation from the Church, and attachment to some of the sectuarian doctrines by which they were surrounded.

which must ever result from association with such counsels and such practices. Neither was this all. We have heard the influence of music in the choirs, and that even by persons whose presence in the Church at all could afford no edification, calculated upon with almost equal emphasis as the talents of the atmost equal emphasis as the taients of the pastor.

The peculiar circumstances under which the congregations have been formed, were such as rendered it apparently expedient to leave these matters generally to the discretion of the congregations themselves. The time, however, has arrived, when modifications are required, not only for the order and decorum of ecclesiastical relations, but also by the general demand of the people themselves. We have, therefore, directed and ordained, by the statutes of the diocese, that, henceforward, no body of lay trustees, or lay persons, by whatever name called, shall be permitted to appoint, retain, or dismiss, any person connected with the Church—such as section, organist, singers, teachers, or other persons employed in connection with religion or public worship, against the will of the pastor, subject to the ultimate decision of the ordinary.

pastor, subject to the ultimate decision of the ordinary.

We have ordained, likewise, that the expenses necessary for the maintenance of the pastors, and the support of religion, shall, in no case, be withheld or denied, if the congregation are able to afford them. It shall not be lawful for any board of trustees, or other lay persons, to make use of the church, chapel, basement, or other portions of ground, or edifices consecrated to religion, for any meeting, laving a secular, or even an ecclestastical object, without the approval, previously had, of the pastor, who shall be accountable to the flishop for his decision. And, with a view to arrest the evil of the trustee system in expending inconsiderately, or otherwise, the property of the faithful, it has been ordained as a statutel of the locese, that no board of instees shall be at liberty to vote, expend, or appropriate, for contracts, or under any prefeat, any portion of the property which they are appointed to administer, (except the current expenses above alluded to,) without the express approval and approbation of the pastor, in every case. And it is farther ordained, that even thus, the trustees of the churches, with the approbation of the pastor, shall not be at liberty to expend an amount larger than the sum of one hundred dollars in any one year, without the consent of the Bishop approxing or permitting such expenditure.

One of the first and most explicit decrees of preving or permitting such expenditure.

One of the first and most explicit decrees of the Provincial Council in Baltimore directed and enjoined on the Bishops of this province, that they should not, thenceforward, consectate any church therein, unless the deed had been previously made, in trust, to the Bishop thereof. This rule has hitherto been followed strictly by the great majority of the episcopal body; and wherever it has been followed, the faithful are exempt from many of the evils to which we have already referred. Religion progresses —the clergy are freed from annoyances—their ministry is respected—their influence with the people obtains large and numerous contribution, for the rection or improvement of churches, and the clanger of seeing those sold for debt and given over to profanation, is alike femoved from the apprehensions of pastor and people.

We may be assured that if we would have the Church of God to spread among us—if we would have our venerated elergy enshrined in the holiness of their office, and in the affection of their flocks—if we would have our venerated elergy enshrined in the holiness of their office, and in the affection of their flocks—if we would have piety and charity and peace to flourish among us; it is not by imitating the loftiest efforts of human wisdom, displayed in the ecclesiastical policy of modern seets, but by emissing the loftiest efforts of human wisdom, displayed in the ecclesiastical policy of modern seets, but by emissing to tread, as nearly as possible, in the paths trodden by our ancestors in faith, according to the prescriptions of that Church to which the Holy Spirit was promised for its guidance, and from which the veracity of that promise is a pledge that it will never depart.

We are indebted to the Journal of Com-We are indebted to the Journal of Com-merce for the preceding remarkable paper, that print having copied it from the Ca-tholic Freeman's Journal of the 8th instant— —a journal which we do not see. The article is an extract from a "pastoral let-ter," recently issued by the Right Rev. Bishop Hughes to the Catholic clergy and laity within his diocese.

We are somewhat in doubt whether w We are somewhat in doubt whether we should ascribe this production to excessive knowledge or excessive ignorance of men's minds, opinions, and modes of thinking, at this time and in this country; whether the Bishop shows himself, in its promulgation, a man of exceeding sagacity and boldness, or simply a man of exceeding rashness without any sagacity at all. The solution of this question will be afforded by the result, and by that only. ed by the result, and by that only.

If the imperious mandates of the Bishoj are obeyed, he will deserve to be placed in the same rank with Thomas a Becket, and that proud prelate who gave law to Joh of England within his own dominions of England within his own dominions; but if the "atholic laity question these mandate and the authority of him who issues them—if they apply the doctrines and principles of democracy to Church as well as State, and claim for themselves the exercise of "the largest liberty" in religious as in temporal matters—if they scrutinize, appreciate, condemn, and finally disobey, the onerous commands now laid upon them—the Catholic Church will have received a blow, at the hands of its own upon them—the Catholic Church will have received a blow, at the hands of its own zealous and daring servant, more formid-able than any that could be inflicted on it by the Journal of Commerce, Dr. Brown-lee, Professor Morse, and the Commercial Advertiser all together.

Certainly the bold Bishop has taken Certainly the bold Bishop has taken a long and a vigorous stride backward toward the universal despotism of the Papal ages; and inasmuch as he admits that the laity have long been in possession and enjoyment of the rights which he now proposes to take away from them, it is very questionable whether the grasp of the clerical authority will be submitted to, or that of the laity relaxed. It is not the characteristic of the popular mind anywhere, in the present age, and least of all in this country, to give back power into the hands of authority, either lay or clerical, which has been wrested from it, or rical, which has been wrested from it, or

There are three prominent points in the Bishop's letter, in regard to which, as we conceive, the laity will probably take leave to think for themselves at least, if their to think for themselves at least, if their thinking do not result in correspondent action. These are, the prohibition of mixed marriages except on conditions which there will be great difficulty in acceding to, the absolute prohibition of memberahip in Odd Fellows' ladges and other associations of a like nature, and lastly the clutch of the elergy at the exclusive management and control of at the exclusive management and control of all Church temporalities from the highest t the lowest.

The question of mixed marriages has recently given a vast deal of trouble in one of the European kingdoms—Prussia—where it led to the arrest and final imprisonment of a Catholic Bishop. The prohibition strikes at the least controllable affection of the human breast—one which has time and again proved too mighty even for sectarian bigotry—and we should even for sectarian bigotry—and we should be very much inclined to doubt whether an no temporal or physical power could be wielded in its aid, would be more likely to cause a rupture of the proposed alliance than a genuine or nominal conversion from against secret societies will be disregarded, if at all, for another reason. The church, in forbidding membership in these societies, on pain of exclusion from her pale, in life and in death, has meddled, paie, in life and in death, has medded, according to our republican notions, with what was none of her business. If there is evil in such associations, per se, it is an evil falling within the province of the temperal not the spiritual government. the temporal, not the spiritual govern-

In Italy, and in Spain, as Spain thirty years ago, the prohibition of the Church in such a matter would be sub-mitted to without question or thought of resistance. It remains to be seen whether mitted to without question or thought of resistance. It remains to be seen whether the Catholics of this country have so far imbibed the general disposition of the people and the age, to form their own opinions as to what is and what is not the legitimate as to what is and what is not the regularists subject of Church regulation, as to raise this question for themselves in the matter of Free-Masonry and Odd-Fellowship. If they do, the Bishop's mandate will go for nothing.

We do not know how the dictates of the We do not know how the dictates of the Bishop in relation to the management of church revenues have been received; the Journal of Commerce intimates that they have been in many cases complied with, unresistingly and without hestation. If such has been the case now, we do not believe that it will always be the case. Disputes will arise—there will be dissatisfaction with pastors, organists, sextons and faction with pastors, organists, sextons and singers—the congregations will murnur, complain, and finally insist on having a voice potential in these mutters—then there will be appeals to law, in which there will be appeals to law, in which judgment will be given against the Church—or, probably, the congregations will divide, and many will either give up going to Church altogether, or, becoming gradually influenced by the general spread of intelligence, will in time lose their devotion to the Catholic faith, attend other Churches and at het become converts to Churches, and at last become converts to These, it seems probable to us, will be among the fruits of the Bishop's bold push for the restoration of Papal authority to its ancient conditions of vigour.—The result may be widely different; and if so, the Bishop will then have established his claim to superity as well as to hardhood. claim to sagacity as well as to hardihood.

These astounding disclosures, in conexion with the arrest, and examination of the supposed criminals, produced, as might be expected, a great excitement at Little Rock, and a sense of danger, which caused the better part of the citizens to concert measures for the common detence. On the night of October 7th, says the paper above mentioned, two separate guards were inadvertently placed at the house of William Caldwell, (who was then running at large) with a view to detect him, as it was known he was lurking about the city. These different guards were ig-norant of the presence of each other at Caldwell's house. The night was cloudy drenched with rain, which was almost cor stantly falling during the night. Mr. N. B. Thomasson was a member of the one guard, and Mr. Edwin Y. Baker a member of the other. Mr. Baker was shot by Mr. or the other. Mr. Baker was shot by Mr.
Thomasson, through mistake, and died in a few minutes. Below we publish, at the request of Mr. Thomasson, an extract from a letter written by him to his brother, which explains the circumstances attending this lamentable occurrence. Mr.

Thomasson is a worthy and much respected gentleman, and is acquitted by public sentiment, of all criminal design, for it is well known, that he and Mr. Baker were friendly to each other to the last. No man would impute improper motives to him, who knew with what in-

A letter was despatched to her on Friday morning, conveying the heart-rending news. How inscrutable are the ways of Providence. Thus fell an esteemed, virtuous, and intelligent citizen, in the service of his country. His loss is deeply felt, ral his death has east gloom over the public mind, which was sufficiently evinced by the large concourse of persons who attended his funeral, notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather.

"Caldwell, who was one of the first that was apprehended, broke from custody and made his escape. It was to watch his house and retake him, if he returned, that myself and friend, Mr. Reynolds, were appointed. We were stationed at the after end of the house of Mr. Blackburn, the buildings. Unknown to myself and Reynolds, there was a guard placed on the other side of Caldwell's house, which is au open lot. The night was very dark. Near one o'clock, Reynolds and myself ascertained that some person had entered Caldwell's house. We took possession of this back gate. After censulting some minutes, I returned, awoke Blackburn, and passed him through his front house into the street, to watch the front door. I then returned to Reynolds, at the gate. We were undecided for some minutes. I then came in front along Blackburn's ally, to confer with him. He adjudged it best to place me in front, a situal-prince of Schwartzburg Rudolstadt and minutes. I then came in front along Blackburn's ally, to confer with him. He adjudged it best to place me in front, a situation which I gladly accepted, owing, as I believed, to its being the less dangerous. According then to the suggestion of Blackburn, I came in front, and passed Caldwell's gate; and as I came to the door, I was hailed by a voice directly in front, in the words: "Who comes there." I instantly replied: "One of the guard;" Move and I'll shoot you." He instantly replied, "Laurie, (Dr. Laurie, a particular friend). I then called him to me. Knowing the necessity of being prompt with such ing the necessity of being prompt with such a man as Caldwell, (who had been represented to me as being expert in the use of deadly weapons, and a desperate man), I returned instantly to the gate, and cried out to Blackburn and Reynols! "Do your do; a noise has been made." In an instant, a lean war made from the door, in Caldwell. lean was made from the door in Cald

a leap was made from the door in Caldwell's house, along the alley, and a rush for the gate. I saw my danger. I would have to contend in the open street with a desperate foe, on equal terms, unless I could intimidate him and stop him at the gate. Before he made the second step, I called to him with a voice and in a manner not to be disobeyed at such a time: stop or I would kill him!

He heeded it not, but burst through the gate. I by this time, had retreated some four feet from the gate, in front of the house. He rushed from the gate, ran rather around me, and was entirely passed me, when he stopped, wheeled, and his me, when he stopped, wheeled, and his pistol cap exploded. He proved to be one of my best friends, E. Y. Baker. We both evidently laboured under the same belief. He had been placed as a guard unknowingly to me, and had unfortunately gone into Caldwell's house. He no doubt attempted to fire at me, believing I was Caldwell, and died under the belief that Caldwell had shot him.

A TOLERABLE knowledge of geography is reasonably common in this country—especially in these portions of it where common or district schools are established. From the course of study pursued in these and from the thousand and one newspapers which everybody reads, a general knowledge, more or less accurate, is obtained, of the Earth's principal divisions; and with regard to Europe in particular, no decently informed American is, or at all events ought to be, wholly ignorant of the names, location, extent, and manner of government, of the principal kingdoms and empires. But we question much whether there are not, in the very heart of Europe, a large number of tences, unknown even by their uncouth names to a very great majority of our countrymen. Most of these petty states are situated within the territory to which we, in common parlance, give the names of Germany and Austria; but, though in some form and to some extent properly regarded as portions of those empires, they are in fact separate sovereignities, and enjoy—if there is any enjoyment about it—a specific national existence.

After the concussion she is to back her engines and rettire for another attack on her second enemy, or to allow her boats to pick up the surviving crew of her vanquished foe; and what is more astonishing than all is, that her enginery is so constructed as suddenly to shift its place, without detriment or derangement. This last precaution is obviously necessary to her effectiveness, for the purpose intended. A BEAR SCRAPE.—On Saturday, the 1st of the current month, a son of Mr. Robert M'Donald, of Earl Town, (not far from Picton) was sent to examine a potato field, to ascertain if any cattle had broken into it. After proceeding about 20 rods from the house, he was attacked by a she bear with four cubs. The bear immediately seized him and threw him violently diat. It seized him and threw him violently on the ground. As soon as he rose she struck him again, and he fell. When he rose the second time he attempted to strike her with a small stick, but she caught him again and tore his head fearfully, and he was prostrated a third time. Providentially, at this critical moment some cubs withdrew her attention from the boy, who seized the opportunity and sprung over a fence near which the event occurred. The bear instantly followed, but when she alighted on the tence it gave way under her, and before she could re-cover, the boy happily effected his escape. When he arrived at the nearest house, he was literally covered with blood, and not a shred of his clothing remained except the collar of his shirt. A Man Shot.—At the election in Jefferson tp., on Tuesday, a man named Morgan was shot through the neck by a person named Gendlespiker. The circumstances which led to the melanchy affair, as we learned them, are briefly these: In the early part of the day, liquor was brought to the election ground, and retailed to the citizens contrary to law. Some of them became intoxicated, and a fight occurred in which six or eight took part. During the confusion which prevailed,—Morgan was standing by the side of his uncle, when Gendlespiker ran part. During the confusion which pre-vailed,—Morgan was standing by the side of his uncle, when Gendlespiker ran round the crowd, and threw down the rifle. The ball entered the neck of Morgan and lodged under the back part of his head.
